Center's closing could hurt GC schools

Balen still plans to continue renovations

By Mike Heil
Staff writer

If the Charles Melvin Price Support Center closes, it could mean Granite City School District 9 would go on the Illinois State Board of Education's financial watch list, says Granite City's superintendent of schools. Superintendent Steve Balen, speaking at the monthly Granite City Rotary Club breakfast Wednesday at Charlie's Restaurant, said that if the district goes ahead with plans to renovate the district's elementary and middle schools, it could leave the district without the cash reserves required by the state to stay on the list. However, he said going ahead with the renovations is probably "the right thing to do." Because of a loss of an estimated $600,000 to $700,000 per year in state and federal funds generated by the base, over a period of several years, the district's year-end balance could be less than 5 percent of the district's budget, triggering its addition to the list in 2001.

"We don't want that to happen," he said. "As of now, we are weighing our options."

The district plans to renovate its two middle schools, Coolidge and Grigsby middle school, and two elementary schools. (See SCHOOLS, Page 5A)

Kambarian attends D.C. conference

By Mike Heil
Staff writer

When Erik Kambarian hopped on a plane recently and headed to the nation's capital, he knew he would be taking part in defense, diplomacy and intelligence conferences.

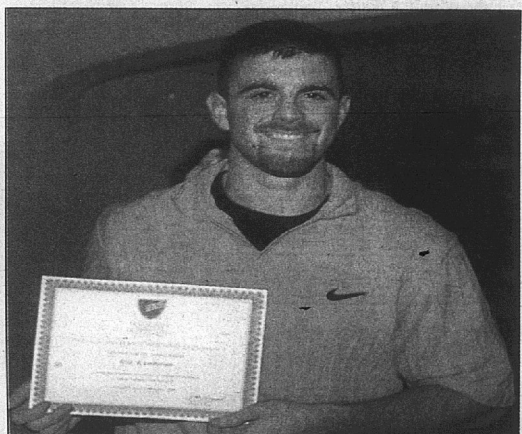

He didn't know, though, that he would be a mock CIA director shaping America's foreign policy in a mock crisis simulation.

The Granite City resident was one of 300 students from throughout the nation to attend the National Youth Conference for Future Leaders.

"It was quite an honor. I knew it would be a once-in-a-lifetime experience," Kambarian said.

Kambarian, a 17-year-old junior at Granite City High School, is a member of the varsity football team, runs track and participates in social studies and foreign language clubs. After he graduates next year, Kambarian said he would like to receive an ROTC scholarship so he can study political science and international studies in college.

Last summer, Kambarian was nominated to attend the leadership conference by an anonymous teacher because of his 4.9 (on Granite City's 5-point scale) grade-point average and leadership abilities.

Council hears from water-plagued residents

By Mike Heil
Staff writer

People whose homes and yards were backed up with water from last week's heavy rainfall voiced their displeasure in the way the city has addressed the ongoing water problems that continue to effect Granite City residents.

The remarks were made Tuesday night at the Granite City Hall Council meeting.

Mayor Ron Selph said that those matters would be looked into in two or three weeks, even though finances have been the stumbling block toward resolving the water-related issues.

"Something must be done," Selph said. "These problems stem from the fact that they were not taken care of 30 years ago."

Seventh Ward Alderman Bob Cook, who represented a handful of frustrated residents whose homes were affected by the water, said that the Granite City Street Department should be more responsive to streets that are inundated with water. He said that when he called the street department last week about water that had backed up onto Pontoon Road, an official from the street department said that "nothing could be done."

Cook, in a discussion with Granite City Street Superintendent Jerry Lakin, told Lakin that he should look into the drainage system in his ward. Lakin responded by saying that to put an end to the water problem there, a new pump must be installed or longer pipes should be added to the pump.

The water-related areas discussed were along Pontoon Road and at Village Lane and Partney Estates.

Dennis Joyce, who resides at Partney Estates, spoke to the council on behalf of residents in his subdivision. He told the council that the residents hoped something could be done immediately because each time there is a heavy rainfall, the situation worsens.

While Joyce was speaking, he gave

A crime's a crime, no matter who does it But try telling that to some people

A woman called a white back complaining about our coverage of some crimes over a recent weekend. Specifically, she was complaining about a story about several crimes that occurred in Venice.

Scott Cousins

She started by telling me, ever so pointedly, that the two incidents — a shooting and an armed robbery in a small restaurant — were unrelated. True, I said, pointing out that was why the items (admittedly part of the same story, a common practice after a busy weekend for the police) were separated by the phrase "in an unrelated case."

It didn't seem to make a dent. What followed were a few accusations of racism and threats of legal action — both rather amusing. Unfortunately, I was not able to figure out exactly what her part in this little drama was. Was she a victim? Or perhaps the restaurant owner?

I don't know because she didn't give me a chance to ask. If I had been able to get a word in edgewise, I also might have pointed out that when it comes to crime news, we don't care who does what.

By that, I mean we do not care at all if a victim or criminal is black, white, red, short, tall, fat or whatever. As far as I am concerned, a criminal is a criminal, a suspect is a suspect, and a jerk is a jerk. Police officers might — and frequently do — put it another way, but this is a family newspaper.

And as crime news goes, somebody getting into the middle of an argument and being shot by mistake, or being robbed at gunpoint while waiting for a pork steak, is kind of newsworthy, no matter where it happens.

The only time race becomes a factor is with a race-related crime — a purple guy beats up a green guy, all the while yelling bad things about being green — or when a description of a suspect is mentioned.

In the first instance, the police or state's attorney's office would be the ones telling us something is race-related. In the second, race can be a very important part of description. Dang, while I was writing this, she called again, telling me her lawyer wanted a retraction or else I was apparently in big trouble.

Sure, whatever. Again, she hung up before I could say or ask anything. Given the chance, I might have pointed out that in the same paper were a couple of crime stories from Granite City.

In one, two guys sent their girlfriends/live-ins/whatever to the hospital with broken bones and other injuries. In the other, one fellow was caught with a gun in his car, among other things, and a kid had a Molotov cocktail, and there was an armed robbery at a fast-food store.

Except for the brief description of the fast-food robber, race didn't matter. Never does, never will.

What's next on the agenda? We're overloaded with garbage information

Carol Clarkin

As I write this column, it's 7:45 a.m., Thursday, Feb. 11. Showered, dressed, bed made, finished with morning coffee and newspaper, from which I learned that Senate Majority Leader Trent Lott plans to call for an impeachment vote by 4 p.m. today.

By the time this sees print, we'll all know the outcome of that, and I doubt there'll be any surprise. What I'm NOT doing is turning on my television. That can wait till evening. I'm taking no chances right now of getting a glimpse of Linda Tripp baring her soul in an "exclusive" interview on the "Today" show.

It would be pleasant to think that, following the Senate vote, the whole mess, like Rick Bragg's marvelous book, would be "All Over But the Shoutin'," but I'm afraid we're going to have to put up with a lot more shoutin'.

Linda, every woman's role model for "Best Girl Friend," has legal bills to pay, so who can blame her? And the timing of the TV appearance is so RIGHT! But there's more to come. Waiting in the wings, for sure, is the endless Monday-morning quarterbacking of every known TV newsmen in the country. I have no idea what size viewing Linda's interview is drawing today, but you can bet your bottom dollar that Monica's upcoming chat with the ever-compassionate Barbara Walters will outclass it immeasurably.

One writer predicts that Monica's "exclusive" talk will draw Super Bowl-level ratings and that her tell-all book (ghost written by Andrew Morton and to be published by St. Martin's Press) will make the best seller list. I don't plan to watch THAT interview either, and it goes without saying that I wouldn't waste a dime on the book. The only question I'd have any interest in asking Monica would be whether, in the future, should she feel the need to confide what most of us would consider highly personal matters, would she consider conducting a body strip search before opening her mouth?

Before we're through, I figure we're going to be treated to interminable interviews on the subject with just about everyone except Bill, Hillary and Chelsea. Enough is no longer enough, it's too much.

Sooner or later, of course, it will all die down, but probably not until another scandal surfaces to titillate public interest. Until last night, I'd been wondering just what that could be.

Princess Di's demise and the O.J. trial are history. What's in the future?

I think I caught a hint on last night's "Dateline."

Wanna know? Tinkie Winkie. If, like me, you are unfamiliar with the name, let me enlighten you.

It's a critter, not a person. A Teletubbie. Something similar to Barney or the Beanie Babies. There are several Teletubbies, I learned, but Tinkie Winkie is in trouble.

With the Rev. Jerry Falwell, who suspects the critter of being gay, and hence, a threat to the moral fiber of our youngsters.

Tinkie Winkie is suspect, according to Falwell, because he is purple (isn't Barney purple, too?), because he carries a handbag and because he has some sort of triangle on top of his tiny head.

Falwell can excuse the handbag, he says, because Tinkie passes it around to the other critters, but he is positive that the color and the triangle are symbols of gay society.

Never having seen a Teletub-bie before, those shown on the news segment struck me as being, pretty non-threatening. Innocent, to be blunt. I checked the TV listings and found that in our area, the show appears on Channel 9 (public TV) sometime around 9 a.m.

I doubt that any kid over the age of 4 or 5 even watches it, since at least during school seasons they're presumably in a class somewhere.

One thing's for sure. If the so-called gay community was seeking converts, as the Rev. Jerry does on a constant basis, I seriously doubt they'd be aiming their efforts at toddlers.

But what the hey, the imaginary threat to our kids at least gave him a 15-minute shot in front of a news camera. Again.

Clinton a disappointment

It's very disappointing to think that American citizens think Clinton is doing a good job. Think of the millions of dollars he's letting be spent on his impeachment that could be putting needy people through college, renovating standing schools or building much-needed schools. I'm sorry, but you have it all wrong. He's the most disappointing president I've ever seen. Our country is strong and we would survive regardless.

Brain aneurysm killed former Alton mayor

Voumard remembered as servant

By Ande Yakstis
Staff writer

An autopsy revealed that former Alton Mayor Ed Voumard died Sunday of a cerebral aneurysm, the Madison County Coroner's office reported Tuesday.

Area residents were shocked by the sudden death of Voumard, 50, who served the people of Alton as alderman, city clerk, mayor and a Madison County Board member. He was on the County Board at the time of his death Sunday night.

The Alton Fire Department rescue squad arrived at Voumard's home at about 9:44 p.m. Sunday and attempted to revive the former mayor, who had collapsed. He was rushed to Alton Memorial Hospital and pronounced dead at 10:32 p.m.

The coroner's office reported Tuesday that the official cause of death was a cerebral aneurysm.

The visitation for Voumard will be from 4 to 8 p.m. today at Gent Funeral Home in Alton, where a funeral service will be held at 11 a.m. Friday.

People of all walks of life, from laborers to congressmen, continue to remember Voumard, whose lifelong dream was to be elected mayor in 1989.

"My wife, Georgia, and I are saddened by the death of Ed Voumard," U.S. Rep. Jerry Costello, D-Belleville, said Tuesday. "Ed poured out his heart and soul for the city of Alton and its people."

Voumard was a strong voice for major improvements to help the future of Alton, Costello said.

"Ed and I worked closely together to get funding for major projects such as the new Clark Bridge and the development of the big Alton Marina on the riverfront," the congressman said.

Alton City Clerk Mary Bouds praised Voumard, who taught her to operate the city clerk's office.

"I started to work as Ed's secretary when he was city clerk in 1983," Bouds recalled. "Ed was a wonderful teacher to me."

Bouds' husband, Alton Fire Capt. David Bouds, was the fire chief under Voumard, who was mayor from 1989-92. "I graduated with Ed from Alton High School in the class of 1967," Bouds said. He remembered Voumard as a man who was "dedicated to the people of Alton."

"As mayor, Ed always tried to make the best decisions for the city," David Bouds said. "His door as mayor was always open to the people. He listened to the citizens."

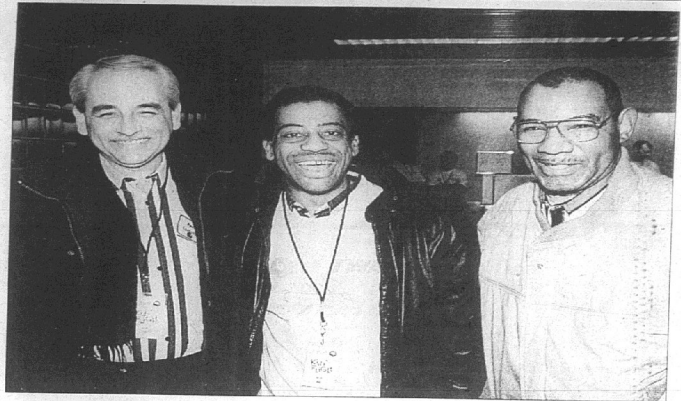

Voumard was an alderman in Alton from 1979-81 and Alton city clerk from 1981-89 when he was elected mayor. He was re-elected in November as a Madison County Board member in District 9.

Voumard's friend, Dave Whipple, said that the former mayor never met a stranger and was a friend to people from precinct committeemen and governors to steel workers and business owners.

Madison County Sheriff Bob Church remembered Voumard as a "conscientious mayor who loved the city and its people."

Voumard's late father, Ed "Big Ed" Voumard Sr., a former Alton police officer, helped train Church when he joined the Alton Police Department. Church later became a lieutenant in the Alton Police Department.

"Big Ed Voumard Sr. and Ed Jr. spent their lives helping the people of Alton," Church said.

POLICE BLOTTER

Venice

Battery: Two men were charged after an altercation in a Venice market Saturday.

Lennil Johnson, 22, who gave police addresses in both Edwardsville and Venice, and Quassim "Sam" Aljeburi, the owner of the New Market at 87 Baucum, filed complaints against each other for misdemeanor battery after the alleged incident, which occurred at the market at about 6:30 p.m. Saturday.

According to police, Aljeburi told police that Johnson wanted service and was told to wait in line. Johnson allegedly started cursing, tried to cut in line and pay for candy, and when he was told to return to the side of the head with it.

Police reported that it appeared Aljeburi had been struck with something. Johnson was located in the 300 block of Baucum a short time later.

He told police that he had been in line, but the customer making up his mind, so Johnson attempted to pay. He said Aljeburi cursed him and pulled a gun and threatened Johnson as he tried to leave.

Venice Police Chief James Newsome said the two were allowed to sign complaints against each other and that the courts could sort it out.

Drug possession: A Granite City man could face drug charges after police found suspected crack cocaine during a routine traffic stop.

Gerry A. Armbruster, 25, of the 2000 block of 14th Street in Granite City, was charged with having a suspended registration, failure to secure a new registration and driving without insurance. Armbruster also had outstanding warrants for failure to appear on charges of driving without insurance and illegal dumping.

Charges of possession of a controlled substance are pending lab analysis.

According to reports, at about 10 p.m. Sunday, a police officer noticed Armbruster driving in a "known drug purchasing area" near the boxcar apartments.

A record check revealed the vehicle's registration was suspended.

During a search of the vehicle, a piece of suspected crack cocaine was found.

Compromise sought in football flap

By Rebecca Hopkins
Staff writer

A compromise is being proposed to the Bethalto School Board in an effort to resolve the suspension of nine football players last fall.

Gregory Tobin, an attorney for the players who were accused of violating the district's zero-tolerance policy on alcohol use, first attempted to approach the board with the proposal at a Feb. 10 executive session, but was asked to leave the building.

Tobin's original proposal suggested that the board consider community service as a disciplinary action rather than suspension. Tobin offered an amended proposal Monday that would include some form of "modified" suspension. He did not elaborate on a specific modification, but did say that the students' parents would approve of it.

"We would like to approach the school board with this," Tobin said. "The parents involved have approached the school board on several occasions, but were rebuffed by them. The parents want the opportunity to be heard before the school board to discuss this lawsuit with them."

Tobin said he and attorney Bob Ramsey agreed with the board in wanting to resolve the situation, but have made no headway in their attempt.

School Board President Tom Beiermann said district officials were pleased with the ruling of the Fifth District Appellate Court's decision to reverse and remand the original ruling in October that had allowed the players to finish the season.

"A decision regarding the suspensions is not appropriate until the order becomes final," Beiermann said.

School District attorney C. Dana Eastman had advised the board not to reach a conclusion on the suspensions until they received the "mandate" from the Appellate Court in Mt. Vernon. The mandate is written notification that the order is final. On Feb. 10, Beiermann said in a statement that the mandate could be received in approximately 21 days, unless an appeal is filed.

Housing boom not expected to fall

By Sanford J. Schmidt
Staff writer

House sales are giving people in the real estate business a warm, cozy feeling, and the outlook is for more of the same.

Sales of single-family houses in the River Bend were up 10.8

percent from 1997 to 1998, and growth is expected, according to figures from the Greater Gateway Association.

"Conditions for home sales in 1998 couldn't have been better," said Jean Crosby, president of the Illinois Association of Realtors. "Steady, low interest rates, high consumer confidence and a healthy economy all contributed to this record year. All indications point to another strong year in home sales. However, the predictions for 1999 won't be quite as strong as 1998."

The Greater Gateway organization includes real estate offices in Alton, Wood River, East Alton, Bethalto, Edwardsville and Glen Carbon.

In the Greater Gateway area, slightly more than 3,000 houses were sold in 1998, compared with 2,732 in 1997 and 2,650 in 1996.

Prices in the Greater Gateway area remained modest, rising only 3.6 percent between 1997 and 1998.

The median price of houses sold in 1998 was $82,700, compared with $79,600 for 1997. The median price of a house in Oak Park was $205,400 in 1998.

House sales statewide hit a record for 1998, the state association said.

The number of houses sold in Illinois in 1998 topped the 100,000 mark for the first time with 104,468. House sales statewide for 1998 increased 14.2 percent.

The 1998 statewide median price was $135,100, an increase of 4.8 percent over the '97 median price of $129,000.

House prices in Illinois for 1998 ranged between $38,700 in the Barrington area to $42,700, the median price in the Kewanee area.

The year-end Housing Affordability Index was up compared to the previous year. The 1998 year-end index stood at 159.9, compared with 157.1 in 1997.

Interest rates were down, which, along with a strong economy, helped fuel the boom in house sales, officials said.

Bill goes after guns, felons

Convicted felons who are illegally possessing firearms will face stiffer penalties under legislation sponsored by State Rep. Steve Davis (D-Bethalto).

Madison County State's Attorney Bill Haine requested that Rep. Davis draft the legislation, which cracks down on repeat offenders who are convicted of illegally possessing firearms.

Haine was in Springfield today to testify on the bill, which passed out of the Judiciary Committee with unanimous support.

"This bill puts more teeth in the existing law. Felons caught illegally carrying firearms will face increased jail time and will be ineligible for probation or parole," Davis said. "Anything we can do to crack down on these violent repeat offenders will help keep our streets safer."

The legislation upgrades the conviction of unlawful use or possession of weapons by felons from a Class 3 felony to a Class 2 felony. The penalty for a Class 2 felony is three to seven years in jail and a $10,000 fine. The legislation also makes these offenders ineligible for probation or parole.

"We are fortunate to have Steve Davis working for us in the General Assembly. With his help, we were able to pass a bill out of committee with unanimous support that will crack down on repeat offenders and help keep the bad guys in jail where they belong," Haine said.

BBB fields more questions in 1998

By Scott Cousins
Staff writer

Better-educated consumers have more questions, but don't always have the time to look for the answers, so they turn to the Better Business Bureau. For the BBB serving Eastern Missouri and Southern Illinois, that amounted to about 242,115 inquiries during 1998, an increase of about 13 percent over the previous year.

It also dealt with 14,579 complaints. Michelle Corey, president of the local BBB, said complaints were actually down 9 percent from the previous year.

She said the BBB has implemented pro-active services for area businesses in an attempt to prevent complaints instead of reacting to them. Last year, more than 500 employees of area firms attended customer relations seminars and forums.

"We hope that by helping businesses to enhance their customer relations skills, more focus will be placed on customer satisfaction and retention," she said.

The most complaints last year — as in the previous years — were about franchised auto dealers. A total of 973 were recorded.

Second was home remodeling companies with 639, followed by used auto dealers, auto repair shops, telephone companies, dry cleaning/laundry supply companies, carpet and upholstery cleaning companies, landscaping and lawn-care companies and floor-covering stores.

She said this is the first year that landscaping and lawn-care companies have made the top 10 complaint list.

Telephone companies have moved up. In 1997, they were listed in last place, but have moved to sixth.

Corey said it was partly due to deregulation and also to the proliferation of special features and services.

"Ever since the deregulation of long distance, there has been a lot of telephone slamming and cramming," she said.

Slamming is when someone unknowingly switches their long distance service to another company. Cramming is when people unwittingly have additional services added to their telephone bill.

Home remodeling contractors head the list of business inquiries, topping out at 13,475. Next are roofing contractors with 7,951 and work-at-home companies with 5,888.

Since 1997, mortgage and escrow companies have risen from last place to fourth, with 4,056 inquiries during 1998.

"I think this is a sign of economic conditions where many people are out there and purchasing homes or refinancing loans," Corey said.

The only new industries on the list are waterproofing and insurance companies.

Population shift forcing GC schools to renovate

By Mike Heil
Staff writer

An estimated $6.5 million in renovations and additions to Granite City schools are necessary because the district's population has shifted from west to east, causing overcrowding in some schools, according to district officials.

Speaking at the monthly Granite City Rotary Club Prayer Breakfast at Charles Restaurant Wednesday, Granite City School Superintendent Steve Balen said that in the 1980s, several schools in Granite City were closed because of budget problems, including Granite City High School North in 1983 after being open for only 10 years.

The shift in population away from older sections of Granite City to the east has caused schools like Mitchell, Niedringhaus Elementary School is supposed to have a capacity of about 396 students, but currently has 436 students enrolled, which is 110.1 percent capacity.

Niedringhaus and Maryville elementary schools to become overcrowded.

As an example, he said Niedringhaus is supposed to have a capacity of about 396 students, but currently has 436 students enrolled, which is 110.1 percent capacity.

Mitchell is at 127.7 percent capacity, the highest among schools in the district.

To relieve overcrowding, the board hopes to renovate Grigsby and Coolidge middle schools and Niedringhaus and Maryville elementary schools. Coolidge will receive a general face lift.

At Grigsby, 16 classrooms will be added, along with one multi-purpose room and two restrooms. In addition, the district's sixth-grade classes will move to the middle schools, freeing up space in all the elementary school buildings.

In the elementary school renovations, six classrooms would be added to Niedringhaus and four classrooms would be added to Maryville.

Schools

mentary schools. He said they also plan to move the district's sixth-grade classes to the middle schools, freeing up space in all nine elementary schools.

The school district is in a precarious situation because of overcrowding, he said. "The renovations will enable the district to have the schools near or at capacity," Balen said. This will enable our faculty to interact more with the students. That will give them a better chance to learn the curriculum."

Balen said the district received a state grant for $3.6 million. The district, he said, would provide an additional $2.9 million.

"The math is simple," he said. "If we close the district about $6.5 million. If everything goes well, the district would like to have the renovations completed some time in the next two years."

Balen reiterated that the Army's decision to close the support center would weigh heavily on the renovations. He added that if the support center closed, he would like to see the same type of development on the land in which the district would receive tax revenue.

The U.S. Army Material

Command, which "owns" the base, does not want to pay for its upkeep and is preparing a "Record of Excess" to get rid of the base. If no other military agency wants it, it will be offered to other private-sector developers.

In addition, Balen said the district will redraw its elementary school boundaries over the next two years if the schools are renovated.

"Some parents will not like their children moving from one school to another, but the realignment will benefit their children," Balen said.

Kambaran

that stated he had been chosen. Three months later, beginning Feb. 7, Kambaran found himself in Washington for the seven-day forum — including visits from the chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, Secretary of Defense Bill Cohen and Rep. Jerry Costello, D-Bellville.

"I never thought I would shake hands with the policy makers of our nation," Kambaran said. "That was quite a thrill."

As part of the curriculum, Kambaran had to attend several conferences and participate in a mock crisis situation. He said the two conferences he enjoyed that most were naval strategy and career opportunities.

"I talked to persons from the FBI and CIA and had the opportunity to learn about naval strategy, as well," Kambaran said. "Everything there was interesting and fascinating."

The highlight of Kambaran's stay, he said, came when he and other students traveled to Patuxent River Naval Air Station, where the St. Louis-made Boeing FA-18C Super Hornet was being tested. While there, he said he had a chance to see the planes on the ground and overhead.

"No pictures were allowed, and only military personnel with the proper clearance were allowed on the site," Kambaran said. "It's hard for me to believe I was there, seeing the same planes that were made in St. Louis."

Kambaran jokingly said that he would have like to return in a Super Hornet, but had to settle for a regular flight.

Kambaran said that after being home for several days, he had time to absorb everything that he had learned in Washington.

"I did not realize the complexity of our government and the difficult situations that are made each day by our leaders. Before a decision is made, I now know that it is scrutinized thoroughly," Kambaran said.

Kambaran added that the most challenging aspect of the forum related to a mock crisis simulation in which he and 21 other students participated in. It dealt with the present-day crisis in Kosovo, where ethnic Albanians and Serbians are engaged in a civil war.

Kambaran said that he was with intelligence. The other two groups were defense and diplomacy.

"After each group read the materials involved in the crisis, they advised the mock president, who made a final decision on how the United States would respond to it," Kambaran said. "Our situation was settled diplomatically. I hope the real situation can be settled the same way."

the council a petition signed by 20 disgruntled residents whose views were the same as his were after the meeting. Henry Thomas, who resides along Pontoon Road, said that water from last week's rainfall almost backed up into his garage.

"The water will eventually get into it," he said. "I just hope something is done before that happens."

Joe Macko, who has resided in Partney Estates the past two years, said he is angry.

"The city can raise our taxes, but the city can't help us with this," Macko said. "It's time for them to stop talking and start doing."

In other matters, the council approved an ordinance for the placement of a stop sign at Konza Court and Missouri Avenue. In addition, ordinances were approved to establish new taxi cab rates and to establish handicapped parking at the rear of 2601 E. 25th St.

Some agenda items for next week's council meeting will include an industrial search and economic development and possible annexations and zoning.

Love

The other candidates are incumbent Joe Garcia and challenger Linda Becker. Each seat is for a shortened four-year term. Although board members will be elected in April, they will not take their seats until November as part of the election consolidation process.

In her objection, Cass said Love made several technical errors and 13 of 60 people who signed his petitions were not registered to vote or registered at a different address from where they are living now.

Love said Cass's objection was part of a plot by officials at Madison City Hall to keep him off the ballot, and has said that if removed, he would run as a write-in.

The original hearing last week was continued so Electoral Board members — School Board members Carol Hamm, James Newsome and Jeff Brick — could have some questions about the number of signatures required answered.

Illinois not having teacher shortage

By Linda N. Weller
 Staff writer

Contrary to a nationwide trend, Illinois is not experiencing a major teacher shortage, according to some officials. News reports recently have painted a dire picture of the teaching profession, relating how educators are streaming out of classrooms into retirement or other careers. The reports show droves of teachers taking advantage of lucrative retirement plans while still in their 50s. Other teachers, particularly those in inner-city schools, leave because they are burned out, stressed out and are tired of worrying about their safety. In Illinois, school administrators and teachers' union officials will answer "yes and no" to the question: "Is there a shortage of teachers here?" The officials also give the same answer to questions about teacher shortages in the next five years or so. "We're not looking at a teacher shortage in the near term," said George King, spokesman for the Illinois Education Association. "There are bright spots and we are not facing a desperate teacher shortage now." Administrators say whether there is an oversupply or dearth of educators depends on what courses those people teach and at what level. Locally, superintendents are flooded with applications for elementary education teachers and secondary level social studies and physical education. But in more specialized areas — math, science and special education, for instance — districts often have a difficult time. To add to shortages, some special education teachers choose to transfer to regular classrooms, prompting an even greater need for those specialists. Alton Superintendent Michael Becher said. Special education teachers also are in demand because the number of pupils needing the courses, the harder the administrators have to work to fill the job openings, said A. D. McClain, assistant superintendent of Edwardsville Schools. He said Edwardsville representatives scout for applicants at job fairs and begin searching immediately when hard-to-fill positions open up. "We are not having a teacher shortage now, but we have to hustle," McClain said. "We also are more active in calling about 30 university career education offices" in Illinois and Missouri. He also said area administrators pass along resumes they don't need to help each other out. Overall, educators say the problem appears to be more severe outside Illinois. As an example, a school district in Massachusetts reportedly recruited Illinois teachers.

Lutz closes in on end of prep career in wrestling

This weekend, Kenny Lutz of Collinsville High School will conclude a brilliant high school wrestling career at the IHSAA Class AA state finals in Champaign.

Lutz, one of the state's top 215-pounders, hopes to medal again. He was fourth at 215 a year ago.

Whatever he does, he won't enjoy it long, because he'll immediately begin thinking about how he's going to end his brilliant high school career in his favorite sport — baseball.

Lutz will complete his prep career as one of the top all-around athletes in school history.

"He's just a natural athlete," said Collinsville first-year wrestling coach Al Kirgan. "I'm sure he'd be good in football, too, if he would have played that."

At 6-foot-3 and 210 pounds, Lutz, a Caseyville resident, has all the tools. He's strong, quick and works hard at his sports. He's got professional potential in baseball.

He is so good, in fact, there was a rumor that Lutz was going to bypass wrestling in his senior year to concentrate on baseball.

"I wouldn't have blamed him," Kirgan said. "But I'm sure glad he came out."

"I wanted to wrestle to get in shape (for baseball)," Lutz said. "Also, I needed to get 20 pounds off. I wasn't afraid of hurting myself."

College coaches and professional scouts are looking upon Lutz as a pitcher, although he's also an outstanding hitter.

"I want to get my fastball consistently in the 90s," said Lutz, a right-hander.

Lutz has been playing baseball and wrestling as long as he can remember.

"I like the one-on-one aspect of each sport," Lutz said. "In wrestling, you're on your own. In pitching, you're also in control of the situation but you also need help from your teammates."

In most instances, Lutz usually comes out on top. He sports a 32-2 record this season in wrestling after going 44-3 last year when he set a school record with 33 pins. Both of his losses this season were to Granite City's Kevin Venne.

"I feel I didn't wrestle that badly against Venne in the sectional," said Lutz, a 7-0 loser in the championship match. "I got in on him, but just couldn't finish him off."

"He's quick for a big guy," Kirgan says of Lutz. "He has a good leg attack. He shoots and usually takes his opponent down. But he wasn't able to do that against Venne."

Kirgan says the 215-pound weight class will be a tough one at state.

"The state's top six wrestlers are there, and all six of them — including Lutz and Venne — were ranked No. 1 at one time or another this season," Kirgan said.

If Lutz wins his first-round match Friday it most likely will set up a match against the current top-ranked 215-pounder, Brian Corcoran of Orland Park Sandburg, later Friday morning.

"You just can't think about him being No. 1," Kirgan said. "At this point, there is no one head and shoulders above the others. You have to be ready to win the close matches. At this point, a lot depends on who wants it more."

"Experience is a big factor in the state tournament," Lutz said. "I know it helped me last year when I finished fourth after getting beat in the first round (at 199) as a sophomore. My experience from last year will help me for this year."

Experience also will help Lutz this spring as he wraps up his baseball season. He was 10-2 last season with a 2.10 earned run average. He also hit .505 with 12 home runs and 50 runs batted in. As a sophomore, he was 8-3 with a 1.46 ERA and hit .500 with 11 homers and 47 RBI.

Baseball is a year-round sport for Lutz now. He even took time during the Christmas break to play on a national amateur select team that played in Australia, thus missing some wrestling competition.

But later this week, his mind surely will be on the mat and not on the diamond, as he tries to conclude his wrestling career in style.

Warriors fall in Jerseyville

Granite City finishes 13-14 with loss in regional opener

By Rick Broome
Staff writer

The Granite City girls basketball team saw its season end far from home Monday night.

The Warriors dropped their first-round IHSAA Class AA regional game 63-35 to Jerseyville.

The Warriors had an unproductive first quarter, scoring only eight points, but found themselves trailing by just six going into the second quarter.

"We were still in the game after the first quarter," Granite City coach John Moad said. "But in the second quarter, we just really came out flat and I don't understand that. Usually when we are in the game after one quarter, it's usually a game for the rest of the way. We just came out and played a very poor second quarter."

The Warriors had 11 turnovers in the first half and entered the third quarter trailing 32-12. They couldn't get untracked against the Panthers who, like the Warriors, are small, quick and tenacious with the press.

"We didn't handle the ball very well tonight," Moad said. "We didn't shoot a very high percentage and that kind of hurt. When you're not handling the ball and you're not shooting the ball well, you aren't going to be very successful. We didn't rebound very well at all. We let them control the backboard and they are not bigger than us. That was a little discouraging. They wanted the ball a little bit more. On loose balls it comes down to who wants it more and they got almost every loose ball."

Jerseyville's Marci Bierman and Ashley Phillips combined to score 28 points for the Panthers, who take on Taylorville in the next round.

For Granite City, senior Debra Aaron led the offense with 10 points. Junior Jessica Wallace had 8 points and senior guard Jan Shanafelt added 4 points.

"It was very disappointing," Moad said. "I feel bad for the seniors. We wanted to go out on a better note than this because we know we didn't play very well tonight."

"We were all concerned that this was our last game together and we just couldn't get going during warm-ups," Aaron said. "But we worked hard the whole time."

"It was a great season. All of the girls really got along well together."

Moad used most of the players on the roster in the game, giving an indication that the program could be in good shape next year.

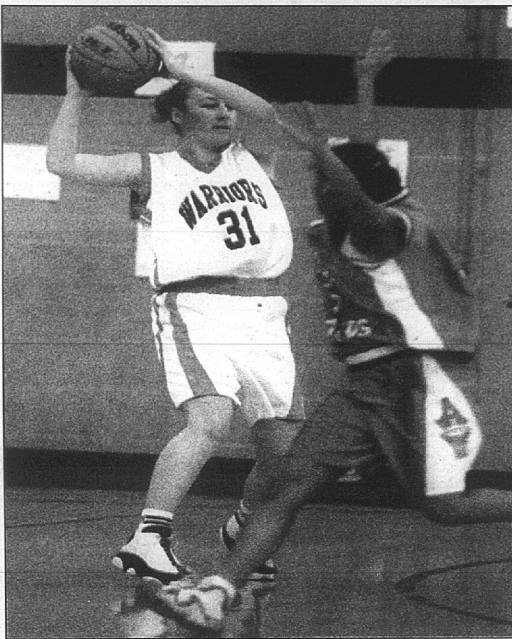

This season, the Warriors made a lot of progress. If their play of late is any indication, the program is in good shape for next year. And it appears to be on the right track after improving last season's 9-20 record into a 13-14 slate this season.

"I hope the girls who are coming back work at it, because these seniors definitely were a hard-working group," Moad said. "They were leaders on and off the court and hopefully our juniors will step into that role next year. The biggest thing we are going to miss is leadership. These girls really took charge out there."

"We're all going to miss them a lot," junior forward Tabby Duff said of the seniors. "It's been a great season with them. They were a major part of our team."

Sophomore Ashley Bogovich will represent Granite City in the second round of the Country Company Three-Point Shootout in Taylorville. Bogovich made six 3-pointers to advance. Shanafelt, Erika Todd and Della Moore also were in the running Monday night, but fell short as Jersey-

Granite City tries to end losing streak

Warriors face Flyers on Friday, Kahoks on Saturday

It's almost deja vu all over again.

The Granite City boys basketball team is finding the concluding weeks of the 1998-99 season as difficult as last year, when the squad lost 10 straight to finish the year 11-17.

BOYS BASKETBALL

The Warriors (12-12) are in the midst of a six-game losing streak that began at the same place at last year's skid at the Salem Tournament. They beat Charleston in the opening game and lost to Edwardsville and Effingham. Since then, they have lost to Edwardsville, Alton, Belleville East and Belleville West in Southwestern Conference games.

In fact, the conference has been most unkind to Granite City. Since winning the first two games in SWC play (against Edwardsville on Dec. 4 and Belleville West on Dec. 12), the Warriors have lost seven straight league games.

The good news and the bad news: They get two more chances this weekend — but they'll have to avenge conference losses to get a win.

Granite City hosts East St. Louis 8 p.m. Friday night. The Flyers are battling Edwardsville and Belleville East for the conference title.

On Saturday, Granite City travels to Collinsville, which is 13-9 and has won six of its last seven games. The Kahoks will also be celebrating senior night on Saturday.

Granite City concludes its regular season 8 p.m. Tuesday at home against Alton.

Warriors to begin defense of title

By Rick Broome
Staff writer

The Illinois Warriors are getting ready for their favorite time of the year — the postseason.

CLUB ICE HOCKEY

The Warriors, defending champions of the Mississippi Valley Club Hockey Association, closed out the regular season with seven wins and two ties in their last nine games. Their 13-6-3 record led the MVCHA Northern Division, marking the second time in the club's two years of existence that it won a division title.

But defending the title will be trickier than winning it the first time.

The favorite is South Division champion O'Fallon, which finished 17-3-2. And the North Division includes challengers such as Alton, Edwardsville and Civic Memorial (all of whom finished 10-6-4).

The Warriors beat Edwardsville 4-2 to win last year's MVCHA title. "I think it's a great honor to be in our division it is Edwardsville and Alton that could cause us some headaches," Warriors coach Paul Solberger said. "Alton is a big team. They have good goaltending, speedy forwards and good defensemen. Edwardsville is a well-balanced team. They have good goaltending and Carl Coleman, who is one of the better players in the league."

After the Warriors' John Stordahl got whistled for tripping to put the Warriors down a man, they responded with a short-handed goal. Svezia tipped a pass into the neutral zone and Bobby Meszaros collected the puck. While being draped by a Marquette defender, Meszaros carried the puck with one hand on his stick, reached down

...and keep you out of the playoffs.' We kind of went through the motions for two periods. They got a power play and scored and it was kind of like, 'Let's go, fellas, and finish strong.' That was nice to be able to turn it up a notch right before the playoffs. We decided to turn it up and get going and we did."

Bobby Meszaros (27) scored two goals and assisted on the game-winning goal as the Illinois Warriors beat Alton Marquette to conclude the regular season. The Warriors finished 13-6-3 in the regular season and won the Mississippi Valley Club Hockey Association's Northern Division.

The Warriors come into the MVCHA playoffs as one of the hottest teams, having last lost 7-2 to Collins-Quarterfinal games are set for March 1-3, the semifinals are March 4-5 and the championship is 6 p.m. March 7 at East Alton.

The Warriors have been clicking offensively with the top line of Wesley, Jared Brown and Bobby Meszaros receiving some support.

Paul Sollberger
Illinois Warriors coach

"We just hope to continue this in the playoffs. Our ultimate goal is to repeat as champions, but you don't want to look past anybody. We have to take it one game at a time now. That's what we have been preaching."

accomplishments is a little bit more. Moead said, "It's their last game and it's hard to go through. We wanted to let them go out on a better note and it didn't happen, but they can be very proud of what they have accomplished. They have been here the last three years when we have really struggled and they got to see this improvement. I think they had a good time. They can forget about tonight a little bit. It's going to hurt now, but give them a few days and they are going to reflect back on the good and the positive things we have accomplished."

that. They have worked awfully hard. We have nothing to be ashamed of. We have come out and played some very good teams very tough. It's not a cakewalk to come out and play us anymore. You have to come out and play a good game. Jerseyville did that tonight. They are well-coached, they didn't turn the ball over, and they did a good job. They are going to be tough to beat.

"I'm very pleased with the season overall. We had our ups and downs, but if somebody had told me that we would win 13 games I would have taken that, from where our program has been. If we can improve on this next year, we can have a winning record. I think a 13-13 regular season is saying something with the competition that we face, that's something to be very proud of. The girls don't feel that way right now, but that's something to be very proud of."

THE LAW AND YOU

By RICK REED
Attorney At Law

Sometimes when a defendant inflicts emotional distress on a victim which is outrageous in nature, the victim (the plaintiff) will sue the defendant for intentional infliction of emotional distress. The courts in Illinois have determined that for a plaintiff to successfully maintain an action of this nature, the conduct of the defendant must be "outrageous." A recent case will help illustrate what type of conduct will be considered intolerable.

In one recent case, the plaintiff had been married to his wife for eighteen years and had two children. The wife began counseling with a pastor at a small church in northern Illinois. Unbeknownst to the husband, during the course of faith counseling, the wife began an affair with the pastor who was also married. Later, the husband himself also sought counseling from the same pastor. The pastor failed to inform him of the continuing affair with his wife.

The husband later discovered the relationship between the pastor and his wife, and he notified church authorities. The pastor was suspended, and he later resigned his position with the church. Soon thereafter, the wife filed for divorce from the husband (plaintiff), and she and the pastor were later married.

The plaintiff's initial complaint brought an action against the pastor for intentional infliction of emotional distress, breach of fiduciary duty, clergy malpractice, and common law fraud. He also sued the bishop and the church. Eventually all of the plaintiff's complaint was dismissed except the count against the pastor for intentional infliction of emotional distress.

Under Illinois law, a complaint for intentional infliction of emotional distress may stand only where the conduct complained of is so outrageous as to go beyond all bounds of decency. Basically, for a plaintiff to succeed in an action of this nature, the defendant's conduct must be regarded as atrocious and utterly intolerable in a civil community.

In this case, the plaintiff alleged that he sought counseling concerning his failing marriage. The Appellate Court noted that the pastor acted in an extreme and outrageous manner by counseling the plaintiff while the pastor was involved with the plaintiff's wife. The plaintiff testified that as a result of the pastor's actions, he suffered depression and emotional trauma. The Appellate Court believed that these allegations satisfied the plaintiff's burden, in that, if proved, they could permit recovery against the pastor for intentional infliction of emotional distress.

Valentine's Plant Care by the experts at

NURSERY & CRAFTS

Where Beautiful Things Begin

That gorgeous plant you received as a Valentine's Day gift can keep on giving its beauty for a long time to come. All it takes is a little TLC. Following are some tips on doing just that.

The information here is nothing new. We've discussed houseplant care on many occasions. But if you're a first-time plant owner, as many are this time of year, you'll definitely learn something.

Plant placement is very important. It may blend in perfectly where it is, but it might not necessarily be in the best spot for its health. All plants require light, that's obvious, but the amount each plant requires can vary greatly. If the plant's in a window, it should be fine. If not, consider purchasing a plant light, which more closely resembles natural light. Fluorescent lighting is far better.

If you have any doubt as to the light requirements of your plant(s), talk to the experts at Frank's.

Plants kept in windows should be rotated slightly every so often. If you don't, they can end up looking a little strange, with only one side getting all the light. A little every few days is all it takes.

Watering is something that's misunderstood by many people, and they simply water the plant every day. Not necessarily true. So how can you tell when a plant's thirsty? Easy. Stick your finger into the soil a little bit. If the soil is dry, none will stick to your finger, and the plant's telling you it needs a drink. Moist soil will cling to your finger, so the plant can be left alone for a day or so.

Don't want to get your finger dirty? Try a wooden ice cream stick. It'll accomplish the same thing.

Another way plants tell you when they're thirsty is when their flowers begin to wilt. Foliage can become dull or very shiny. Tiny new leaves and stem tips may die.

Some plants, such as African Violets, can be watered from the bottom.

This may sound like the opposite of what you learned in science class, but it's true. Simply place the plant in a saucer of water and let it soak up the moisture. When droplets glisten on the soil surface, remove the plant.

Plants should also be a part of your routine housecleaning. Everyone dusts off the shelves now and then, but how many do the same to the plants? You should. They can pick up dust just like the shelf. Give plants a light dusting or even go one more step and give 'em a bath. Not by dunking them in the tub, but simply wiping them with a soft, damp cloth.

Don't wash hairy-leaved plants like African Violets, though, simply wipe them instead. Washing can produce water spots, rubbing can give the leaves a scuffed appearance. So much for the beauty.

Most indoor plants prefer balanced plant foods. All packages of fertilizers, regardless of brand or type, contain three numbers on the package. They indicate the percentage of nitrogen, phosphorus and potash, in that order. To keep it simple, flowering plants like a fertilizer with a high second number, such as 15-30-15.

Plant foods come in liquid or powder form, whichever you prefer is fine. Just remember to follow the directions on the package.

Follow these easy plant care tips and your Valentine's Day plants should be around to enjoy for a long, long time.

Woodworkers converged at Collinsville's Gateway Center last weekend for the annual St. Louis Woodworking Show. The event featured more than 100 live product demonstrations and 29 free mini-seminars. At right, Art Giuliani of St. Louis, from left, demonstrates how to use a saw for Tony Minnick of St. Louis and T.O. Owens of Colorado Springs, Colo.

Bob Herving of Memphis, Tenn., closely examines a tool. Some of the show's exhibitors offered discounted prices on their products.

Kay Williams uses a sander as her husband, Gene, watches. They are Collinsville residents.

Adam Jenkins, Algernon, and Kristie Hille, Cecily, rehearse "The Importance of Being Earnest," which starts today.

'Earnest' slated at McKendree

McKendree College will present Oscar Wilde's comic masterpiece, "The Importance of Being Earnest," Thursday, Friday and Saturday in Eisenmayer Auditorium on the Lebanon campus.

Opening 104 years and four days after the premiere of the play in London, David Brailow, associate dean of McKendree College and theater director, said, "We are in the midst of a Wilde revival, with productions of his plays running throughout the English-speaking world, as well as two highly successful new plays and an important new film about Wilde's colorful life and tragic decline. But nothing can match the supreme achievement of 'Earnest.'"

When "Earnest" premiered, Wilde said of his new play, "It is exquisitely trivial, a delicate bubble of fancy, and it has its philosophy.... That we should treat all the trivial things of life seriously, and all the serious things of life with sincere and studied triviality."

"No other playwright can deliver Wilde's signature mix of outrageous plotting, slyly drawn characters, and sparkling wit. For just over a century, audiences have responded to this most frothy of comic concoctions with delighted laughter," Brailow said.

The plot, which Wilde would admit with satisfaction is very silly, involves two young men (both claiming to be named Ernest, but neither really named Ernest) in love with two young women who have sworn to marry only men by the name of Ernest. In addition to this obstacle, there is also the formidable Lady Bracknell, who insists on absolute adherence to the rules of "good society," no matter what the cost to young love.

"What everyone loves about 'Earnest,' though is the dialogue," Brailow said. "All the characters, even the servants, are wittier than any of us could hope to be."

Some typical gems: "All women become like their mothers. That is their tragedy. No man does. That is his."

"Ignorance is like a delicate exotic fruit; touch it and the bloom is gone."

"The whole theory of modern education is radically unsound. Fortunately in England, at any rate, education produces no effect whatsoever."

And, of course, the immortal "Divorces are made in heaven." McKendree's production will have the look and feel of Wilde's original, with costumes by Robert Schmidt costumes of St. Louis. The actors are being carefully prepared by a vocal coach to reproduce the correct accent for the period and social sphere of the characters.

Director Brailow is working to give the play the style that best conveys its unique qualities of wit and satirical farce.

The cast features award-winning actor Adam Jenkins, a senior from DuQuoin, as Algernon; B.J. Yurcisin, a senior from Granite City, as Jack; Erica Smith, a sophomore from Auburn, as Gwendolyn; Kristie Hille, a sophomore from Bakersfield, Calif., as Cecily; McKendree speech professor Betsy Gordon, a resident of Lebanon, as Lady Bracknell; Melanie Smith, a junior from DuQuoin, as Miss Prism; Chad Kaffer, a junior from Belleville, as Canon Chasuble; Tom Kupferer, freshman from Murphysboro, as Lane; and Rachele Campese, a freshman from Smithton, as Merriwell. The assistant director is Fancee Long, a sophomore from O'Fallon.

To reserve tickets, call Brailow at 537-6821. Prices are $6 for adults, $5 for senior, and $4 for non-McKendree students.

Details make 'Blast' worth seeing

What happens when a filmmaker stuffs a pint of "Rip Van Winkle," a cup each of "Back to the Future" and "Peggy Sue Got Married" and a pinch of "Nell" into a cinematic blender, then pushes the frappe button?

Director Hugh Wilson tried. Out came "Blast From the Past," an uneven, unsettling and strangely compelling combination of froth and melancholy about the importance of sincerity in an age of unremitting cynicism.

Calvin and Helen Webber (Christopher Walken and Sissy Spacek, both in atypical roles) are quintessential early-1960s Americans, living in a picket-fence home in the San Fernando Valley and having other couples over to drink Rob Roys and listen to Perry Como on their Hi-Fi.

They're perfect archetypes — except for the nasty streak of Cold War paranoia that runs through Calvin. Seems he's spent the millions he made on patented inventions secretly building an elaborate, fully stocked fallout shelter underneath his house.

So when the bomb hits, on the night President Kennedy addresses the nation during the Cuban Missile Crisis in 1962, Calvin and the pregnant Helen are quick to duck and cover. They hurry into the shelter, seal it with a time lock and set to waiting out the radiation's 35-year half-life.

The trouble, of course, is that the bomb never hit; instead, a fighter jet crashed atop their house, destroying it. But the Webbers don't know that, and when their baby Adam is born, they raise him carefully in their suburban home, teaching him everything he needs to know about the world — the world of 1962.

Above, life goes on. Mom's Diner rises where the Webbers' house once stood, and — in some of the film's funniest scenes — it changes with the times into a 1970s bar, a 1980s drug hangout and, finally, a 1990s LA dive.

When the 35 years are up, the time locks release and Calvin ventures into the world, expecting — and thus finding 'Blast From the Past' is an uneven, unsettling and strangely compelling combination of froth and melancholy about the importance of sincerity in an age of unremitting cynicism.

— a post-apocalyptic hellscape of dirt, decay and debauchery (translation: the modern Valley). When Calvin returns and suffers some sort of heart pains, it's up to the now-grown Adam (Brendan Fraser) to go forth and procure supplies.

Up top, he meets Eve (Alicia Silverstone), a fast-talking young woman with a protective shell harder than a crustacean's. She thinks he's a) an operator; b) a dork; and, finally, c) messed up in the head.

But Adam's maternally taught polish and unsullied sincerity — he's Forrest Gump without the accompanying moral message — begins to enchant Eve. When he sees the ocean for the first time, her veneer melts as she watches.

The rest of the picture documents Adam's travails in an unfamiliar world. Sure, it's a preposterous idea. But once you accept that, "Blast from the Past" becomes an engrossing, textured story wrapped around the predictable comedy-of-manners format.

Walken's Calvin, upon seeing the apocalyptic modern world, wants to restock the shelter and stay put; Spacek's Helen, though, has taken up problem drinking and is oh-so-ready to be sprung. In one scene, when a conversation upsets her, she begins polishing the sink vigorously — the instinctive escape of a 1962 housewife.

Though the chemistry between Fraser and the ringlet-curling Silverstone never soars, both turn in sweet performances — she as the ever-ironic '90s girl convinced no male is sincere, he as a 35-year-old absorbing the world, and Eve, with unabashed delight.

"Look unimpressed!" she admonishes when they enter a hip club. But he can't, and that's the message: Experience the world. Let it in. Be exuberant.

"Blast From the Past" is sad and disorienting in its chronicling of a drastically changed world. It's also charming and uplifting in its condemnation of cynicism. As a romantic comedy, it's nothing special. But the details — the offbeat paths the plot takes — make it something worth seeing.

"Blast From the Past" is a New Line Cinema release.

Politics provides the trivia

Know presidents?

Trivia

Kevin Carbery

By Kevin Carbery
Staff writer

When people talk about their favorite presidents, they usually stick by their particular party affiliations. That makes sense.

With me, however, the choice is Teddy Roosevelt, even though I am not a Republican. Teddy was an interesting man.

Born to a wealthy family and sickly as a child, his path logically would have led him to a quiet, intellectual life.

As it turned out, the guy was a maniac. He became healthier as he grew up and took up sports and the outdoor life with a vengeance. He enjoyed boxing — not merely to watch it, but to participate. He was an avid hunter and apparently, was the first president to jog around the White House grounds.

He was the youngest president ever, inheriting the job at the age of 42 when William McKinley was shot to death. He was second-in-command of the Rough Riders cavalry unit during the Spanish-American War. He worked, for a time, as a cowboy.

Roosevelt was as active in his politics as he was in his athletic endeavors. It was rumored that Republican Party leaders made him McKinley's running mate as a way of kicking him upstairs and silencing him.

When he became president, he was anything but silent. His administration was known for trust-busting. He led the movement to clean up the meat packaging industry. He started the ball rolling to have the Panama Canal built. He won the Nobel Peace Prize in 1905 for mediating an end to the war between Japan and Russia.

After completing his presidential tenure in 1908, he came back to try again for the office in 1912 when he established the Bull Moose Party. He did not win, but performed an amazing feat. Though shot on his way to make a speech, he continued on to present the full speech before seeking medical aid. I doubt that any of today's politicians could match that.

This week's trivia quiz is on the topic of United States presidents.

1. Which president was the former governor of New Jersey?
2. The first assassination attempt of a president happened to who?
3. If you took the first names of two of the members of the rock group Hanson, you would have the name of which president?
4. Who was the tallest president?
5. What was George Washington's astrological sign?
6. Harry Truman had a place for what type of outdoor game built on the White House grounds?
7. Which president graduated from Eureka College?
8. Who was the only president to have been a Rhodes Scholar?
9. Who was the first president to be elected with less than 50 percent of the popular vote?
10. Who was the only president who never married?

ANSWERS: 1. Woodrow Wilson. 2. Andrew Jackson. 3. Zachary Taylor. The other Hanson brother is named Isaac. 4. Abraham Lincoln, at 6-foot-4. 5. Pisces, as his birthday is on Feb. 22. 6. Horse shoes. 7. Ronald Reagan. 8. Bill Clinton. 9. John Quincy Adams, when he received about 30 percent of the popular vote. He ended up winning when the election was decided by the House of Representatives. 10. James Buchanan.

I will host the following upcoming trivia events: Nerinx Hall High School Trivia Night on Saturday, Feb. 27, call 968-1505 to sign up; St. Louis Community College at Meramec Alumni Association Trivia Night on Saturday, March 6, call 984-7551 to sign up; Lafayette Park United Methodist Church Trivia on Saturday, April 24, call 771-9214.

Kevin Carbery can be heard as a regular on "The Entertainment and Trivia Show" from 8-11 p.m. Sundays on KMOX Radio (1120 AM).

HOROSCOPE

THURSDAY, FEB. 18

The sun enters wise, old Pisces. Its transit through the final sign of the zodiac in the weeks to come will bring an end to many a karmic circle. Many people will realize the reasons for events that seemed nonsensical. Pisces represents spiritual rebirth, and during this transit, we will balance our physical existence with spiritual concerns.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (Feb. 18). A complete goal restructuring this month sets you off on an adventurous year. Travel in the last week of March puts you in a lovely social circle. A new April love challenges your ideas of spirituality and religion. Money is earned through sales in May. Apply for new work or more money before August. A lusty Leo pursues you. Sagittarius is your partner in a wild adventure.

ARIES (March 21-April 19). The completion of a long-term undertaking will leave you satisfied and in high spirits. An unsuspected talent is brought to light. A conversation with an under-appreciated co-worker brings you two closer.
TAURUS (April 20-May 20). Once you've cleared away busywork, you'll be ready to take on the really challenging and productive tasks that excite you so much. You can bank on your skill as a negotiator and diplomat. Concerned relatives call.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21). Emotional needs are answered if you concentrate on other pursuits. Pay attention to the political climate; think issues over carefully. A new approach to a too-familiar task makes work easier.

CANCER (June 22-July 22). Express your feelings of appreciation. Say yes to a dinner invitation. Enjoy sparkling conversation with a new acquaintance who's more interested in you than in a job. Allow complainers to dig their own graves.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). A friendship that turned sour turns sweet again. You have improved prospects for investments, courting love interests and creativity. A personal project takes on new life. A task you didn't feel satisfied with will earn appreciation.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). In love, be clear and brief. You've got intrigue working for you. At work, it is wise to steer clear of confrontation, as your mood is potentially volatile. It is both challenging and necessary to keep a budding romance in perspective.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). Just plain, good sense steers you best. Use your humor to calm down an irate customer or client. A romance with a Pisces or Leo is marvelous. Don't let the emotions of a relative lead you to do something you don't want.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). By working slowly, you actually make faster progress because nothing has to be redone. Your leadership quality comes out at a meeting and shows the boss you have management potential.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). Your money focus now will be beneficial later, but don't be hasty in your expectations of a partner. Let honest sharing and mutual, creative problem-solving heal the situation and provide resolution.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). Your energy is vital to a very constructive project. Provide service where needed. Compromise, and you are soon rewarded. Your values matter. Release relationships or hidden fears that don't support you.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). Be good to your body. Unexpected information or health conflicts may throw you off track. Release negative secrets or fears.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). You increase your chances for a promotion by being vocal about work situations and expressing opinions. Consult with an expert who relieves anxiety and helps increase productivity. Share your own personal experience.

'Beauty, Beast' returns

Hundreds of gorgeous orchids from the Missouri Botanical Garden's award-winning collection are on display during the annual orchid show, which runs through March 14. The show features seven species of life-like dinosaurs lurking among the Garden's Orchid collection, one of the largest and most varied in North America.

This year's show is themed "Beauty and the Beast." Eight thousand people steamed through the Floral Display House for the opening afternoon of the Garden's first orchid show on Nov. 30, 1924. For 75 years, the exhibition of the Garden's magnificent orchid collection has been one of St. Louis's most popular events.

Orchids have long been prized for their beauty. The Orchidaceae has more than 20,000 species, in over 700 genera, making it one of the largest of the world's more than 300 families of flowering plants. The Gardens has about 10,000 plants representing some 3,500 species, varieties, and hybrids, including many rare and unusual species that are endangered or extinct in the wild.

Orchids were a favorite of Henry Shaw, the Garden's founder. At his death in 1899, the Garden's orchid collection, though small, was one of the most complete in the country. George H. Pring, the distinguished horticulturist, played a major role in developing the orchid collection into one of the world's finest during his 57-year career at the Garden.

Orchids are extremely vulnerable to extinction in nature. Wild populations are often over collected, and many species are restricted to a specific habitat, dependent on a particular soil or pollinator. Since 1975, international trade in plants has been regulated by the Convention on International Trade in Endangered Species. The treaty works to control the movement of plants based their degree of endangerment. All orchids species are protected by CITES, and today all of the Garden's plants are legally acquired from growers and researchers.

"Beauty and the Beast" is open daily from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Admission is $2.

'Varsity Blues' fumbles very badly

With its blend of post-game partying excesses, implausible gridiron heroics and aw shucks good humor, the filmed-in-Texas "Varsity Blues" resembles little more than a boozy frat boy's fantasy, a head-on collision of "Porky's" and "Friday Night Lights."

Set in the fictional, football-mad Texas town of West Canaan, "Varsity Blues" follows the conflict between mad, maniacal football coach Bud Kilmer (Jon Voight) and second-string quarterback Jonathan "Mox" Moxon (James Van Der Beek, of "Dawson's Creek") who has the audacity to believe there's life outside of football.

Director Brian Robbins suits up the usual team of cliches in a film that stutters from crude farce to melodrama and back again. Van Der Beek's casual charisma, good-natured performances from colleagues Scott Caan (party-hearty Tweeder) and Amy Smart (Jules Harbor, Moxon's girlfriend) and cinematographer Charles Cohen's fluid camera work provide the film's few saving graces.

Unless, of course, one likes fat jokes, naked hijackings of police cars, drinking contests that end in vomiting binges, sluttish head cheerleaders and high school boys' nights out at a strip bar.

Welcome to small town Texas high school life, a la MTV Films, in a film with more twangs than a locker room filled with elastic shoelaces.

While fast brings football madness to West Canaan, where Coach Kilmer is gunning for his 23rd district championship with the West Canaan Coyotes, backup quarterback Moxon intends to kill time with his football friends. We know he's not a true believer in football because 1) he reads a Vonnegut novel inside his playbook and 2) he wants to attend Brown University.

When superstar quarterback Lance Harbor (Paul Walker) goes down with a season-ending knee injury, caused by Kilmer's win-at-all-costs approach, Moxon finds himself in the limelight. To the surprise of all, he rises to the occasion and the Coyotes march toward the championship that the coach and town crave.

His on-field creativity and distaste for Kilmer's bullying style, however, puts the young quarterback on a collision course with the revered coach just in time for, yes, the big game. Get a pencil and connect the dots from here.

There's one classroom scene in "Varsity Blues" and it tells a lot about the film's tone. With a whole curriculum to choose from, the academic course is, naturally, sex education, whose instructor Miss Davis (Toni Perensky) hopes to lower student inhibition in discussing the subject by getting them to repeat, in unison, the proper names for male and female genitals, among other things. Try finding that on a TAAS test.

As Kilmer, Voight gives a turf-chewing performance that answers the question, "What would Adolf Hitler be like as a football coach?"

Not only is he sadistic, forcing overweight tackle Billy Bob (Ron Lester) to risk permanent injury by playing through pain, but he's racist to boot, keeping the Coyotes' workhorse running back Wendell (Eliel Swinton), the team's lone black member, from scoring touchdowns once the team gets inside the opponent's 20.

He also has West Canaan's police force, faculty and fathers, many of whom played for Kilmer, in his hip pocket.

Opposing him is a high school senior whose heart, like most of the young Galahads who will identify with the film, is semi-pure.

Filmed in Texas, "Varsity Blues" has more than a few touches that local audiences might appreciate. Downtown Coupland — there's a concept — stands in for West Canaan, Elgin High School's football field for West Canaan's (away games were filmed at Georgetown's stadium) and West Canaan's fight song is none other than — whoop, whoop — "The Aggie War Hymn."

Cinematographer Charles Cohen puts the viewer virtually on field during "Varsity Blues" game scenes with fluid camera motions and tight tracking. It captures the flashing excitement of Friday night football, even if the rest of the film rates no better than a high schooler's hormone-driven fantasy.

city as a bumbling near-simpleton who is too inept to get the girl yet still intrepid enough to break out of a government installation.

Hannah, never sexier, throats her way through the picture as the tomboyish Lizzie and is handed one genuinely fun scene — when she pops a shape-shifting gum ball and turns into a giant, saliva-oozing creature. Hurley is clearly having fun as the insolent glam-girl reporter who becomes a victim of Uncle Martin's manipulation.

The ubiquitous Wallace Shawn, who turns up in the oddest places (he himself plays an alien in a recurring role on "Star Trek: Deep Space Nine"), provides some entertaining distraction as Col-eye, a scientist intent on finding out what makes Uncle Martin tick. And look for Walston, complete with white goatee, in a cameo role with a charming twist.

The suit, named Zoot, supplies most of the cool special effects, dancing around, flirting with Victoria's Secret garments and getting drunk on laundry-detergent martinis. And look for a truly alarming scene, involving a toilet and a copy of Field and Stream magazine.

Nostalgia, finally, is itself growing passe. Some advice to filmmakers contemplating a 1960s TV-series remake: Try something else. It might not work, but at least it probably won't be bland.

"My Favorite Martian," a film from the Walt Disney Co., is directed by Donald Petrie from a script by Sherri Stoner and Deanna Oliver.
